My schooling was at Our Lady of Sion College, Box Hill. After two years as a tax clerk in the Public Service, at the Elizabeth Street Post Office in Melbourne, I joined the Sisters of Our Lady of Sion at the novitiate in Sale and am a member to this day. After completing my B.A. at Melbourne University in 1970, with majors in Ancient Middle Eastern Studies (Biblical Studies) and Modern History, I undertook two years of primary teacher training, and gave piano lessons as well, at Our Lady of Sion, College, Sale....

At the end of this period, I was moved to Jerusalem, and began my studies in modern Hebrew in the One Year Program at the Hebrew University as a visiting student.

After a year and a half in England, I completed a Post Graduate Diploma of Librarianship at the North London Polytechnic, and returned to Jerusalem to run the specialised Judaica library at 'Ratisbonne', located in Rehov Schmueel Hanagid, in the Rehavia for four and a half years, while tutoring in Hebrew and giving occasional lectures in Jewish liturgy or on rabbinical texts. I continued to study under Pierre Lenhardt (NDS), before attempting rabbinical courses at the Hebrew University. My studies were in Jewish philosophy of the Second Temple Period at Masters Level, with seminars taught by David Rosenthal, Jonah Fraenkel, Michael Stone and Samuel Safai, among others. During my more than nine years in Israel, I helped in the guest house at Notre Dame de Sion, Ein Karem and also at "Ratisbonne" and "Ecce Homo".

On returning to Australia, my first job was the compilation of the first edition of AULOTS (Australasian Union List of Serials in Theological Collections) with Hans Arns, while working at the seminary library in Manly. In July 4th 1983, at the invitation of Professor Alan Crown, I began work in the Archive of Australian Judaica. It was meant to be a temporary position for a few months, but has continued. In the meantime, I continued to study, further improving my modern Hebrew literature and grammar, and completed an M Phil (Succoth (3000 BCE to 500 CE) and a Ph.D (the Separation of Early Christianity from Judaism) at Sydney University as well as a Bachelor of Divinity with the Melbourne College of Divinity (specialising in New Testament). I also learnt some Yiddish with Dr Jennifer Dowling. I have been active in the New South Wales Council of Christians and Jews since 1990, and am the national secretary of the Australian Council of Christians and Jews. I am also the treasurer and secretary of the Australian Association of Jewish Studies. I enjoy classical music, travel, photography, reading, gardening, craft work, cooking, and nature.
